... different academic approaches in one programme

International cooperation of higher education institutions has brought the possibility for universities and colleges around the world to combine the expertise of different institutions and develop joint Bachelor, Master or PhD programmes. The benefits of attending a joint programme are not only in combining the knowledge and reference materials from different institutions, but also in combining teaching and examination methods from different universities and countries, as well as discovering various cultures with international teachers and fellow students.

... a benefits of studying joint degree programme in Serbia

Higher education institutions from Serbia offer several joint degree programmes with universities from around the world. Studying such a programme leads to a joint or double degree issued by all universities involved. Furthermore, these programmes often offer additional mobility opportunities, internships as well as the opportunity to develop a wide international professional network, making them an interesting choice for all those wishing to study in English in Serbia.

If you choose to study a joint degree programme, not only you can get a degree automatically recognized in at least two countries and study a specialized study field which often isn't offered as a regular university programme, but you will also improve your language, intercultural and other soft skills.
